Slave Trade to be Revived. Within the last few years a disposition has been shown, on the part of Southern States to revive the foreign slave trade .-Several public journals in the South have openly advocated it as a necessity. It is believed that Southern statesmen are only wainting an opportune occasion to present a bill in Congress, repealing the law which declares the slave trade piracy. President Pierce lias just defined his position in favor of the repeal of that law, by granting a free and unconditional pardon to KEHRMAN, who was captain and part owner of the ship Glamorgan, a slaver, captured a year ago on the coast of Africa, and brought to Boston, by Lieut. Downs. Our readers would hardly credit the statement of Pierce's sympathy in this direction, were it not for the following act of clemency, over his own hand, which has found its way into the public journals:

FRANKLIN PIERCE, President of the United States of America, to all whom these presents shall come: greeting. Whereas, It appears that, at the May term, 1854, of the Circuit Court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts, Charles Kehrman was convictcise of the Executive clemency; and unconditional pardon.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto signed my name, and caused the seal of he longed to apply the test of exact scithe United States to be affixed.

Whom Does it Mean?

The Boston Atlas thus significantly points out Col. John C. Fremont as its favorite candidate for the Presidency .-With Fremont for President and Banks for Vice President, we think there might be something of a baule fought in the North,-Chicago Democrat.

We want a candidate who, amidst the scenes of trial and suffering, has exhibited an inflexible firmness; we want a man who, under circumstances the most adverse, has shown himself calm and courageous; we want a President who will not flinch when the day of danger is at hand, but who will stand by the Union and the Constitution, when both are assailed by the disorganizers of the South and by the dough-Democracy of the North. The Presidential office does not demand a man of shining intellectual ability, or of great political experience. What we want is character and honesty. Without the first, a President is a mere sport of circumstance-the mere slave of his party-the easy dupe of the designing-and the tool, now of the last, great talents only entail upon us have a candidate who cannot be made a plaything even by a score of Douglases. Let us have a candidate whose singleness of purpose will command the the Mississippi to San Francisco. Again popular respect-whose chivalrous nature will secure the popular admiration.

"Dear Sir: Your son - and his friend are now under the same roof with me, and I claim them as my boys. They have proved themselves. I will take care of them. I have no children, but I have six nephews-little boys; all of them can shoot, but none of them as well as their uncle. When they can drive the nail on the head three times out of five, at one hundred yards, they can do what their uncle has often done. When they can ride a wild, unbroken horse, without bridle or saddle, then they are fit

"Your son and his friend have proved themselves good 'Border Ruffians;' but, my dear sir, we do not deserve this appellation. Those of us who are called the 'Border Ruffians' are men of property, of education—the best kind of men. We are the men who will submit to no wrong. We know when to resent an insult, and perhaps are too ready to do it. But what I wanted to say to you is this, that your son, and all the sons of South Carolina, are mine; and I will have an eye for them, and will care for them as I would care for my gallant young nephews. Although not an old man, I have some character. I am known somewhat, for good or evil, throughout this broad Union; but mostly for evil if the Abolition press is to be believed. But, in one word, if the friendship of the Chief of the Border Ruffians' will be of any benefit to your son, he has it.

Your obedient servant,

Col. John C. Fremont.

We give below a meagre sketch of the eventful and heroic life of this man who is still in the prime of his days: FREMONT, JOHN CHARLES, the "Pathfinder of the Rocky Mountains," a man who has opened to America the gates of her Pacific Empire, was born in South Carolina, January, 1813. His father was an emigrant gentleman from France, and his mother a lady of Virginia. He received a good education, though left an orphan at four years of age; and when, at the age of seventeen, he graduated at Charleston College, he still contributed to the support of his mother and her children. From teaching mathematics he turned his attention to civil engineer-ng, in which he made so great proficiency that he was recommended to the government for employment in the Mississippi Survey. He was afterwards employed at Washington in constructing maps of that region. Having received the commission of Lieutenant of Engineers, he proposed to the Secretary of War to penetrate the Rocky Mountains. His plan was approved, and in 1842, with a handful of men, he reached and explored the South Pass. He not only fixed the locality of that great pass, through which myriads now wend their way to California, but he defined the astronomy, geography, botony, geology, and meteorology of the country, and discribed the route since followed, and the points from which the flag of the Union is now flying from a chain of wilderness fortresses. His report was printed by the Senate, ed of the offence of having been engaged translated into foreign languages, and in the African slave trade, and sentenced Fremont was looked on as one of the to be imprisoned in the jail at Boston for benefactors of his country. Impatient the period of three years, and to pay a of other and broader fields, he planned fine of $1,000; and where is, it has been a new expedition to the distant territory made satisfactorily to appear to me that of Oregon. He approached the Rocky the prisoner is a fit subject for the exer- Mountains by a new line, scaled the summit south of the South Pass; deflec-Now, therefore, be it known that I, ted to the Great Salt Lake, and pushed Franklin Pierce, President of the United his examinations right and left along his States of America, in consideration of entire course. There was a vast region south of this line invested with a fabulous interest, to which

Then began that wonderful expedition, filled with romance, daring and suffering, in which he was lost to the world nine months, traversing 3500 miles in sight of eternal snows, in which he revealed the grand features of Alta California, its great basin, the Siera Nevada the valley of San Joaquin and Sacramento, revealed the real El Dorado, and established the geography of the Western portion of the continent. In August, 1844, he was again in Washington, and his fame was sealed. He was planning a third expedition while writing the history of the second, and before its publication in 1845, was again on his way to the Pacific, collecting his mountain comrades, to examine in detail the Asiatic slope of the continent, which resulted in giving a new volume of science to the world, and California to the United States. After the conquest of California to the U. S., in which he bore a part, he was made the victim of a quar- Receiving, Forwarding, Storage and rel between two American commanders, and stripped of his commission by court-martial. The President reinstated him, but Fremont would not accept mercy, but demanded justice. His connection with the government now ended. He was a private citizen and a poor man. He had been brought a prisoner from this faction and now of that. Without California, where he had been explorer, conquerer, peace-maker, and governor. the country heavier misfortunes. he appeared in the far west. His old mountaineers flocked about him, and with thirty-three men and one hundred and thirty-three mules he started for the Pacific. On the Sierra San Juan all his was read at a late Kansas meeting, at mules and more than one-third of his mules and more than one-third of his men perished in a more than Russian 3.000 for sale, wholesale or retail, at the cold: and Fremont arrived on foot at Santa Fe, stripped of all but life. The men of the wilderness knew Fremont; they refitted his expedition; he started again; pierced the country of the fierce and remorseless Apaches; met, awed or defeated savage tribes; and in a hundred days from Santa Fe, stood on the banks of the Sacramento. The men of California reversed the judgment of the court-martial, and Fremont was made

JOHN DEERE'S CELEBRATED MOLINE PLOW WHICH WAS AWARDED THREE FIRST PERMITING

AT THE ILLINOIS STATE PAIR, IN 1855. THE subscriber is permanently located at Moline, on the Mississippi river three miles above Rock Island, and being the Pioneer Plow maker in the Western States—having been engaged exclusively in the Plow making business in this State for the last eighteen years—he flatters himself that with his present facilities he is ters himself that with his present lacinities he is able to offer the farming community a larger and better assortment of Plows than any other manufacturer in the West. The very best of stock is now used, and none but the best and most experienced workmen are employed in their manufacture. Any of the following list of Plows can be furnished at wholesale or retail, on short notice, and can be forwarded to any point on the Missouri river in the season of nav igation : No. 1, German steel, steel land-side elippers. No 4, English e. steel, "No. 5, American" No. 9. German c. steel, deep tiller, clipper style. Double and single shovel plows, 3 and 5 tooth Having obtained the right to manufacture and sell the celebrated MICHIGAN DOEBLE PLOW. in the western States, he would call the attenin the western states, he would can the attention of Farmers and others interested to the merits of this Plow. When used as a breaking plow, it turns the sod over into the bottom of the furrow, and the back plow brings up the soil loose and covers it completely, leaving a smooth and light-seed bed, enabling the new comer in the West to get a good crop from his first plowthe West to get a good crop from his first plowing—as good as can ever be raised on the soil. The sod, stubble, clover, manure, or whatever else lies upon the surface of the ground, is put down so low (being in the bottom of the furrow) that a cultivator or drag will not bring it up. Sod is made as mellow as a summer fallow, and for corn, will tend with about one half the labor it would require after a single plow. Another advantage of this plow over any other is, that it will plow a deep trench furrow, and will draw easier than a single plow, run at the same depth and width, and the draft is as light with the forward plow as without it. This Plow is manuand width, and the draft is as light with the forward plow as without it. This Plow is manufactured from the very fine quality of German steel; it has been so altered by the subscriber that it is warranted to scour in any western soil. The first premium has been awarded this plow as being the best now in use fo all purposes, at the State Fairs in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illineis, and at every county Fair at which it has been exhibited. The following Houses on the Missouri river have his Plows for sale, to whom he would refer:

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI. Little Giant Corn and Cobb Min and exclusive agent for their sale in the West and exclusive agent for their sale in the West.

G. W. BROWN, of the Herald of Freedam, Lawrence City, K. T., is authorized to receive orders for the above firm.

Soveral Mills are subject to Mr. B.'s order in the warehouse at Kansas City, Mo., for sale...

No. 2, grinding 10 bushels of corn feed per hour with one horse, price $40, and charges for freight, &c., this side of St. Louis; No. 3, $50, with cost of freight. &c.; No. 4, $60, with additions of freight. The latter, with two horses, will grind of feed 20 bushels per hour. No additional gearing required.

Argusta, Ga., April 8d, 1855.

I have been running one of South Little Grant Corn and Ch Mills, No. 4, for the last Giant Corn and Cb Mills, No. 4, for the last five weeks, and it performs to my entire satisfaction. It was warranted to grind twenty bushels per hour, but I have ground over thirty-five bushels in an hour and and a half, or equal to twenty-three and a half bushels per hour. In feeding thirty horses I save over 100 bushels of corn per month, it now requiring only two hundred bushels of corn with the seb, where I formerly fed three hundred. I consider it decidedly the best kind of Crusher ever got up; and if I could not replace mine, I would not sell it for five hundred dollars.
